The Name of Frank Leslie.

It Will No Longer Figure in the Magazine Field.

The last relic of Frank Leslie, a notable figure in the journalism of fifty years ago, passes away from the magazine field this week with the issue of the current number of the monthly magazine he founded. Formal announcement was made by its new owners last Wednesday that they have decided to change the name of "Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly" to "The American Illustrated Magazine."

All interest of the house of Leslie in this notable literary venture was surrendered a number of years ago, after the death of its founder. His widow and literary helpmeet clung to an engraver ten days at least, sometimes a fortnight, to redraw a big picture on the wooden blocks provided for him. Frank Leslie hit upon the expedient of cutting up the picture into twelve squares and the wooden block into twelve sections, and putting an engraver to work on each. When all were ready the sections were screwed together again and the picture printed from the whole block.

The Civil War, then opening, completed his fortune. He had twelve correspondents and artists at the front, which was an enormous staff in those days. His paper printed more pictures and longer accounts of the incidents of the struggle than any other weekly.

He then started "The Popular Monthly" and nearly a score of other publications, and they all prospered. He never hesitated about sending anywhere to get an illustrated article which was likely to interest the public.

FEAR INFECTION ON FERRIES.

Protest Against Method of Sending Patients to Sanatorium.

Timorous persons have directed the attention of the Jersey City Board of Health to the fact that consumptives to be sent to the sanatorium of the New York Board of Health, at Otisville, N. Y., will be sent over by ferries, and that others are likely to be contaminated.

Dr. Gordon K. Dickinson, president of the Jersey City board, does not entertain such grave apprehensions from the possible contact of the Jersey City folk with tuberculosis victims. Dr. Dickinson said yesterday:

It is impossible for the tuberculosis germ to grow where there is plenty of sunlight and fresh air. The trains are not as hygienic as they might be, but I do not think there would be much danger of infection if one were seated in the same car with a patient. Tuberculosis is a tenacious house disease, and there must be certain surroundings for its development. We seldom hear of a case among the so-called "better class." At times at the meetings of our medical societies I have stated that the city was to be congratulated for having no new tuberculosis cases, whereupon other doctors who had patients in the tenement house districts replied that congratulations were not in order, as they had many patients under their care. People will not contract tuberculosis unless they are ripe for infection. There must be a lack of nourishment and a lack of sunlight and fresh air to give the disease a foothold. People who are ripe for infection with the tuberculosis germ may contract the disease while riding on a trolley car. They
